TO STUDY AT INSTITUTIONS IN OTHER STATES

MISSOULA--

Students at the University of Montana, Missoula, may apply for the National Student Exchange Program for 1977-78, which enables college students from one state to study at an institution in another state without paying nonresident fees. Applications are being accepted through Feb. 9.

UM students may either register and pay fees at UM and attend school in another state or transfer to an out-of-state school and receive a fee waiver at that institution. Students may attend one of the 37 state institutions participating in the program for one to three quarters.

To qualify for the program a student must be enrolled at UM during spring quarter 1977, be a sophomore or junior during the time of the exchange and have a 2.5 cumulative grade point average. The exchanges are worked out by representatives of the participating institutions at the program's national meeting at Atlanta, Ga., in late March.

Patricia Callbeck, coordinator of the program at UM, said about 20 UM students participating in the program currently are attending schools in other states. Each year about 30 students from out-of-state schools attend UM under the program, she said.

Callbeck said most UM students attend institutions in the West and Northwest, but other universities popular with UM students include the University of Hawaii, Honolulu; University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and University of South Florida, Tampa.

Applications and further information about the exchange program can be obtained from Callbeck at the UM Office of Admissions and Records, room 222 in the Lodge, or by phoning 243-5771.
